For Immediate Release

WOW...They're Everywhere!!

Look! There are lions in the tall grass to the left, and, oh, there are zebras and impalas too numerous to count grazing ahead and slightly to the right. What should you do? Now is not the time to be indecisive – just grab your camera and hope the batteries last.

An abundance of exotic wildlife coupled with breathtaking vistas, unbelievable sunsets and sunrises over the deltas and plains, exquisite dining and unusual accommodations keeps you on sensory overload and loving every minute of it. There is so much to see, do, taste and smell that your senses will encounter something new almost 24/7. Where can you go to combine all of these experiences into one trip? Why, only Africa, of course.

But, doing Africa right takes money, and travelers want to be sure that they will see what they want to see, experience what they want to experience, and not be disappointed. Any traveler yearning to experience Africa should begin their adventure by first exploring the pages of the new 7th Edition of Mark W. Nolting's Africa's Top Wildlife Countries. Still the only book covering all of the major wildlife countries, parks and reserves, it is the perfect place to begin.

The main allure of Africa is to experience the wonderful wilderness of a still primitive continent where wildlife in its natural and exciting environment still abounds.

Nolting has spent more than 30 years exploring and researching the African continent. According to Nolting, "The first thing travelers need to do is be very clear on what they want to experience, since the options are almost endless."

Other travel experts agree. “Africa is an incredibly diverse and changing place. Lodges and camps come and go on the safari circuit, emerging destinations like Mozambique and Ethiopia offer new wildlife experiences, and tried and true countries like Kenya, Tanzania and Botswana continue to redefine the classic safari. The 7th edition of Mark Nolting’s book stays ahead of the curve with valuable insights and information to help you plan your own unique safari,” says Costas Christ, Global Travel Editor, National Geographic Adventure.

Although vast sections of Africa are unchanged, other areas, Botswana for example, have been working to improve their facilities to take advantage of the rising interest in trekking. Botswana’s profile has been raised by the books and TV adaptations of Alexander McCall Smith’s books, The No. 1 Ladies’ Detective Agency. One mystery that remains unsolved is why more tourists have not yet discovered the incredible wildlife experience of Botswana. Its Okavango Delta region is arguably the world’s best destination for wildlife-based tourism. One 10-day adventure holiday follows the zebra migration and combines walking safaris, canoe trips on the delta, exciting game drives in search of lions and boat trips. It could easily be called the ‘best wildlife experiences’ or the ‘wildest safaris on earth.’

No matter what a traveler is hoping to experience on a trip to Africa, if they begin with Mark Nolting’s Africa Top Wildlife Countries, 7th Edition, they can plan what will surely be a trip of a lifetime.

About the Author

Known in the industry as the “Travel Expert of Africa”, Mark W. Nolting is the author of two award-winning books: Africa’s Top Wildlife Countries (now in its 7th Edition) and African Safari Journal (now in its 5th Edition). Though he has essentially covered the African continent in his numerous journeys there, Nolting continues to travel to Africa yearly to update information and explore new areas. Hard to find information on Africa is always at his fingertips, and he loves to take the time to talk to people about the many adventures that can be found on the continent.
